ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method of backing up BIOS settings stored in a CMOS memory of a computer system in DMI memory. In this method, the DMI memory in the flash memory backs up the 5   BIOS settings data stored in the CMOS memory on the motherboard. The BIOS settings stored in the DMI memory can be restored to the CMOS memory to update the BIOS settings for the computer system when the BIOS settings stored in the CMOS memory are lost.

10